Open consultations on human rights principles for conservation financing

Come and join us for a facilitated conversation about appropriate human rights standards that should be applied, by funders, to the conservation actors that they fund. We are convening four (4) open consultations aimed in particular at indigenous peoples’ organisations and communities, and at other local, customary communities engaged in conservation or impacted by conservation projects.

Register below for French, Spanish or English sessions of the consultation and we will provide you with the reference materials.

Please note, space will be limited and representatives from Indigenous peoples’ organisations and representatives from local community organisations and networks will be prioritised.

We look forward to seeing you there (on Zoom)!
